Reflections on Volunteering By Tammy Lewis

As I am looking at my window in late February, Robins and Cardinals are singing their song of warmer weather while the trees are budding with the promise of green leaves. I am also reminded that it is almost time for Bombay Hook to reopen on the weekends and time for me to volunteer at the Visitor Center and the Blue Heron Gift Shoppe.

Volunteer? Yes, volunteer. Something wonderful happens when volunteers are full of hope and promise during Spring with the return of birds from their winter grounds singing a lovely choir while Refuge visitors awaken with discoveries of flowers, trees, insects, mammals, amphibians and reptiles emerging from their winter sleep. Kids are awestruck as they discover the wonders of the world away from the roughness of life while giving hope to their generation.

Being a volunteer is not about handing out brochures and giving directions; it is about finding common interests with visitors while working together with Refuges to make these natural wonders possible.

And volunteers are truly needed in this day and age as budget cuts are forcing refuges to "do more with less" by freezing staff positions and eliminating programs. Without the volunteers at Bombay Hook, many of the programs and services would either be eliminated or nonexistent. Volunteers have participated in Environmental Education programs, the Junior Ranger programs and events such as the Bombay Hook Quarter Ceremony and Kids' Day; manned booths for events such as Blackbird Creek and Old Dover Days; staffed the Visitor Center; provided Refuge tours; and assisted the Refuge staff in numerous administrative and maintenance functions.

If you are interested, please come to our Volunteer Orientation on March 4 at 10:00 a.m. in the Visitor Center auditorium and see what we have to offer. Volunteers DO make a difference in helping our refuges to survive as well as thrive.

Blue Heron Gift Shoppe

Hello Friends!

Thanks to all of our supporters, the Blue Heron Gift Shoppe had a great fall season. Normally closing about 1 ½ weeks into December, we stayed open throughout the entire month this year. We had a great sale and gave out 20% off coupons to use in 2017. Our 2016 T-shirt was a big hit this year with the theme of the Bombay Hook salt marsh. Be on the lookout for our 2017 design!

See you in the Spring!

BIRD NOTES

By Franklin Smith

Rainfall during October and November was less than normal and pool levels, although generally good for shorebirds were less than optimal for newly arriving waterfowl. Fortunately, December and January saw levels rise and made food more available for feeding ducks. Populations in Shearneck Pool increased significantly during that period although numbers of Pintails and Green-winged Teal in that unit did not appear to reach those of recent years. Temperatures remained mild during December and January with the exception of about six days when temperatures remained below freezing. Ice cover never lasted long and pools remained open. One six-inch snowfall represented the total snowfall for the winter to date.

Bald Eagles all over Delmarva are becoming much more abundant. Eagle pairs constructed two new nests this Fall on Bombay Hook NWR. Both nests are easily observed by Refuge visitors along the Auto Tour route. One nest is on George's Island (the wooded hummock in the tidal marsh east of Raymond Pool) and the other is located on the island in the northwest portion of Raymond Pool. There are other nests located both on and off Refuge property which should provide plenty of Eagle observation opportunities for Refuge visitors during the next few months.

Tundra Swans were present in the three major Refuge impoundments from late November until the end of the period when nearly 300 birds were present. The first Snow Geese were reported during late September when a few birds dribbled in. By early October, 200 birds were present. One thousand birds were recorded by early November with larger numbers by early December. The population continued to increase on the Refuge into January when groups of 5,000 birds plus were normally present on the Refuge during some portion of the day. Ross's Geese, Cackling Geese, and a group of 8-9 Greater White-fronted Geese were frequently reported throughout the report period after early November. A Brant was reported in early November and a Eurasian Wigeon was sighted during the last week of December. A female Redhead was seen during January when Common Mergansers made their presence known for the winter period.

Marbled Godwits were sighted each month of the report period. Hudsonian Godwits were reported into December. Avocets were sighted each month and varied from a few birds to 650 (November). Visitors were treated to a good variety during October and November with some huge concentrations of mixed species in Money Marsh during low tide and Raymond Pool (high tide). Species encountered during that period included Black-bellied Plover, a few Golden Plovers, Semi-palmated Plovers, Stilt Sandpipers, White-rumped Sandpipers, Least Sandpipers, and Yellowlegs (both).

A White Ibis was seen during late October. Peregrine Falcons were present during much of the period, in particular October and November when they harassed arriving waterfowl and shorebirds in the impoundment and over the salt-marsh.

Red-shouldered Hawks, Redtails, Merlin, Kestrel, Harriers, Long-eared Owls as well Short-ears and Barn Owls were recorded. A Lesser Black-backed Gull was observed in November and December. Red-headed Woodpeckers were reported along the Boardwalk Trail in early October. A Pileated Woodpecker was reported in Finis Woods in October and December. A Yellow-headed Blackbird was recorded during November.

Starting the Year Right With the Bird Club

On January 1, the Friends' Bird Club enjoyed its annual field trip to the Indian River Inlet area and Silver Lake in Rehoboth. The group started at the Indian River marina, went over to the Inlet and then headed north to Rehoboth. All told, they saw about 30 species including Surf Scoters, Long-tailed Ducks, Red-throated Loons, a Harbor Seal swimming under the bridge, and the famous Silver Lake Canvasbacks. The Inlet waters were extremely calm, temperatures were in the 50s and there was very little wind -- a rare day for January 1.

Thanks to other birders along the way, the group learned where to find two recently reported rarities: an Ash-throated Flycatcher and a Crested Caracara. There had been considerable buzz on the birding networks about the two species, so everyone was excited to see them. The Caracara provided great views by flying between nearby trees and going to the ground to eat.

Two weeks later, Bird Club members went to Eastern Neck National Wildlife Refuge near Rock Hall, MD, for a private tour. They especially enjoyed the sunshine and the birds by Shipyard Creek. Highlights included three Sapsuckers interacting just up the trail, along with both White-breasted and Brown-headed Nuthatches. In total, 34 species of birds were recorded over a three-hour period.

The next two trips will be at Bombay Hook in March.

You are encouraged to attend the Bird Club's field trips. There are no dues, fees or meetings; the Club just goes birding! You can attend as often or as seldom as you want. The only requirement is that you be on the Club's email list. Dates, times, meeting places, special instructions and any last minute changes are communicated via this email list. You do not have to be a member of the Friends, either, although it is hoped that you eventually will want to do that.

All levels of birders are welcome from those who never even held binoculars all the way to highly expert veteran birders. It is an excellent way to improve one's bird identification skills, learn about various species, and have fun with friendly people.

A “threatened” designation means a species is at risk of becoming endangered throughout all or a significant portion of its range. After the presentation, the group will go to Pickering Beach to see Horseshoe Crabs that come up onto the Bay beach to spawn. If we are lucky we will see shorebirds as well, bring binoculars and spotting scopes if you have them. NOTE: High tide is at 11:49 a.m. and we will plan to be on the beach for about an hour around high tide. Meet at the Refuge’s auditorium. Space is limited. This workshop will focus on learning how to go beyond the “Auto” mode on your camera to enhance your photographs of nature. Learn what f-stop, shutter speed and ISO mean, and how to use them. We will also look at what techniques to use to approach and capture wildlife with the camera.

How Do You Support Friends???

(It's a fact: The National Wildlife Refuge system is underfunded and understaffed)

D - O - N - A - T - E !!!

Every year as funding is reduced, job vacancies are not filled and refuges operate without a budget. To cut costs, many refuges have been consolidated to share staff and resources.

Without the financial and volunteer support of Friends, many of the programs and activities at Bombay Hook would be either cancelled or nonexistent. Friends of Bombay Hook pays for or subsidizes many of the most popular Refuge programs, services, and improvements. Within the last several years, Friends paid for the construction of the new store, the Blue Heron Gift Shoppe; purchased new chairs and a screen-smart TV for the Refuge auditorium for enhanced presentations as well as viewing programs, webinars and movies to educate visitors; instituted a program to assist schools in funding transportation for field trips to the Refuge; and many other expenditures. Working with Refuge staff, Friends members and volunteers helped to launch the Junior Ranger and Junior Refuge Manager programs and the Every Kid in a Park pass program to 4th Grade teachers at local schools; planned, organized and staffed the "Connecting Families with Nature" and the Bombay Hook Quarter Ceremony events; organized the Native Plant Symposiums for the Garden Keepers; and many other activities.

As a 501(c)(3) corporation, we receive no Federal or State funding. We rely on the membership dues and donations we collect and the profits from the Blue Heron Gift Shoppe to provide financial support for the Refuge. Your donations are tax-deductible.

There are several ways you can donate to Friends:

- You can make a donation to Friends by check made out to "Friends of Bombay Hook Inc." and send to: Friends of Bombay Hook, 2591 Whitehall Neck Road, Smyrna DE 19977 (make sure to indicate on the Memo line of the check that it is a donation) with the enclosed form provided below.
- You can go online at www.friendsofbombayhook.org/support.html and donate thru PayPal.
- You can stop in at the Visitor Center during Gift Shoppe hours (will vary in the Fall and Spring months) and make a donation (by either check, cash or credit/debit card)

We urge you to help us continue to improve the visitor experience at Bombay Hook National Wildlife Refuge simply by making a contribution to the Friends of Bombay Hook.
